

Victoria Morris

The bulk of my professional experience is within large consultancy businesses on 'Business Process Outsourcing' contracts. Most recently I've been heading up the Relationship Management function for a Central Government learning contract which involves working with many large government organisations such as the Dept. for Work & Pensions, OFSTED, and the Home Office.

Key Skills:

My key skills are within influencing and stakeholder management and also decision making. I am used to working at a strategic level with people from all backgrounds and delivering strong commercial outcomes.

I'd consider myself a fairly organised person who is used to having lots of things on the go at the same time, I stay quite calm under pressure and can appear 'swan-like' on the surface when necessary!

'If you want a job doing properly, do it yourself' 😊

I'm a keen baker (and eater), and spend a lot of time cooking for family and friends and entertaining. I'm currently very much enjoying teaching my 5 year old daughter to cook!
